Delivering Best Care, Preserving Best Evidence

Referral Criteria for West Midlands Paediatric Sexual Assault Service (PSAS)

The PSAS provides a holistic health assessment for children and young people who may have been sexually assaulted.

Victims of recent abuse will usually be seen by the on-call team at one of our four centres across the West Midlands. Where appropriate, the PSAS team aim to be available within 60 minutes of referral. The on-call team is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Alongside its urgent response service, the PSAS also operates week-day clinics which offer planned appointments at all four venues.

These provide medical examination and holistic care for children and young people where there is concern about possible sexual abuse, but the concern is not deemed to be within the forensic window (non-recent). The clinic offers a choice of venues, dates, and examiner. We aim to offer an appointment within 10 working days of referral.

Why refer non-recent abuse, and concerns where the child has not disclosed?

If there is any concern about possible sexual abuse, a medical examination should be considered; the PSAS doctors are happy to give telephone advice and be involved in strategy discussion.

The medical examination is done in a childfriendly way and is generally very well tolerated. Most children and young people say they felt reassured by it.

The reasons for medical examination are:

- 1. to ensure the health needs of the child/young person is met - this includes screening for sexually transmitted infections
- 2. to provide emotional support the child/young person referred to the service is offered a package of counselling and emotional support
- 3. to provide reassurance the importance to the child/young person of knowing they are physically "normal" should not be underestimated. Even where there are physical findings, the child/young person can be reassured that it has taken a specialist examination to detect them. It is a chance to discuss any fears the child/young person has in relation to their experiences
- 4. to provide evidence it is important to understand that the examination can never rule out sexual abuse, as a high percentage of children who have been abused will have normal examinations. However, in some cases, there are examination findings to substantiate the concern; this can significantly contribute to safeguarding decision-making.

Please note this service has a paediatrician on call 24 hours a day. If you are unsure about whether or not to refer a child/young person to the West Midlands Paediatric Assault Service for a medical, please contact: 0800 953 4131 for a case discussion with the on-call paediatrician.
